ADVERTISEMENTS are taken in——and ſmall HAND-BILLS done on the ſhorteſt Notice.

CHARLES-TOWN, January 12, 1765.

To the Honourable WILLIAM BULL, Eſq; Lieutenant-Governor, and Commander in Chief, in and over His Majeſty's province of South Carolina.

The humble ADDRESS of His Majeſty's Council.

May it pleaſe your Honour,

WE his Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the council of this province, now met in general aſſembly, beg leave to return your Honour our ſincere thanks for your ſpeech delivered to both houſes yeſterday.

While we find ourſelves greatly affected at the diſtreſs of the poor deluded Germans, our hearts glow with a very ſenſible pleaſure when we reflect on the noble inſtance of Britiſh bounty they experienced in the ſpeedy relief afforded them by the liberal contributions of our fellow-ſubjects at home, influenced thereto by the great example of our moſt gracious Sovereign, and we aſſure your Honour, that we will contribute every thing in our power to compleat the happy eſtabliſhment of theſe emigrants, and perfect the work which your Honour's great care and attention to their health and proſperity has ſo well begun: The French coloniſts we ſhall likewiſe continue to think objects well worthy our care and attention.

To effect the equal and impartial diſtribution of juſtice, has ever been attended to as moſt worthy the conſideration of government, and the great increaſe of inhabitants in the interior parts of this province, renders ſome regulations for that purpoſe in thoſe places very neceſſary.

Your Honour's zeal for his Majeſty's ſervice, and the intereſt of this province, affords us an example which we will attempt to imitate, and you may be aſſured, that we, by giving all the diſpatch in our power, to ſuch meaſures and ſuch laws as may be thought neceſſary for that purpoſe, ſhall endeavour to promote that great and deſirable end.

By Order of the Houſe,

In the Upper-Houſe of Aſſembly, Jan. 11, 1765. OTHNIEL BEALE, Speaker.

To which His Honour was pleaſed to return the following

ANSWER:

Honourable Gentlemen,

I GIVE you my ſincere thanks for this addreſs. The loyalty to his Majeſty and zeal for the ſervice of this province which you expreſs therein, give me room to expect all the benefit to the public therefrom, which ſuch diſpoſitions aided by your experience can afford.

Whatever ſervices my ſmall abilities have rendered to this country, have already been improved by the wiſdom and readineſs of your advice and aſſiſtance, and I moſt heartily thank you for them, as well as the very kind manner in which you expreſs your ſentiments thereupon.

Jan. 11th, 1765. WILLIAM BULL.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE LIBERTY of the PRESS,

By the celebrated Mr. HUME.

Read them with Attention!

IT is ſufficiently known, that arbitrary power would ſteal in upon us, were we not extremely watchful to prevent its progreſs, and were there not an eaſy method of conveying the alarum from one end of the kingdom to the other. The ſpirit of the people muſt be frequently rouſed in order to curb the ambition of the court; and the dread of rouſing this ſpirit muſt be employed to prevent that ambition. Nothing ſo effectual to this purpoſe as the liberty of the preſs, by which all the learning, wit, and genius of the nation, may be employed on the ſide of liberty, and every one be animated to its defence. As long, therefore, as the republican part of our government can maintain itſelf againſt the monarchical, it muſt be extremely jealous of the Liberty of the Preſs, as of the utmoſt importance to its preſervation.

Since therefore the Liberty of the Preſs is ſo eſſential to the ſupport of our mixed government; this ſufficiently decides the ſecond queſtion, Whether this Liberty be advantageous or prejudicial? there being nothing of greater importance in every ſtate than the preſervation of the antient government, eſpecially if it be a free one. But I fain would go a ſtep farther, and aſſert, that ſuch a liberty is attended with ſo few inconveniencies, that it may be claimed as the common right of mankind, and ought to be indulged them almoſt in every government, except the eccleſiaſtical, to which indeed it would prove fatal. We need not dread from this liberty any ſuch ill conſequences as followed from the harangues of the popular demagogues of Athens and tribunes of Rome. A man reads a news paper alone and coolly. There is none preſent from whom he can catch the paſſion by contagion. He is not hurried away by the force and energy of action. And ſhould he be wrought up to ever ſo ſeditious a humour, there is no violent reſolution preſented to him by which he can immediately vent his paſſion. The Liberty of the Preſs, therefore, however abuſed, can ſcarce ever excite popular tumults or rebellion. And as to thoſe murmurs of ſecret diſcontents it may occaſion, it is better they ſhould get vent in words, that they may come to the knowledge of the magiſtrate before it be too late, in order to his providing a remedy againſt them. Mankind, it is true, have always a greater propenſion to believe what is ſaid to the diſadvantage of their governors, than the contrary: but this inclination is inſeparable from them, whether they have liberty or not. A whiſper may fly as quick, and be as pernicious as a pamphlet. Nay, it will be more pernicious, where men are not accuſtomed to think freely, or diſtinguiſh between truth and falſhood.

It has alſo been found, as the experience of mankind increaſes, that the people are no ſuch dangerous monſter as they have been repreſented, and that it is in every reſpect better to guide them, like rational creatures, than to lead or drive them like brute beaſts. Before the united provinces ſet the example, toleration was deemed incompatible with good government; and it was thought impoſſible, that a number of religious ſects ſhould live in harmony and peace, and have all of them an equal affection to their common country, and to each other. England has ſet a like example of civil Liberty; and though this liberty ſeems to occaſion ſome ſmall ferment at preſent, it has not as yet produced any pernicious effects; and it is to be hoped, that men, being every day more accuſtomed to the free diſcuſſion of public affairs, will improve in the judgment of them, and be with greater difficulty ſeduced by every idle rumour and popular clamour.

It is a very comfortable reflection to the lovers of Liberty, that this peculiar privilege of Britain is of a kind that cannot eaſily be wreſted from us, but muſt laſt as long as our government remains, in any degree, free and independent. It is ſeldom, that Liberty of any kind is loſt all at once. Slavery has ſo frightful an aſpect to men accuſtomed to freedom, that it muſt ſteal upon them by degrees, and muſt diſguiſe itſelf in a thouſand ſhapes, in order to be received. But if the

☞ All who favour the Printer of this Gazette with ADVERTISEMENTS, are deſired to ſignify at Foot how long they would have them continued; otherwiſe they will be inſerted, as uſual, only in three ſucceſſive Papers.

Liberty of the Preſs ever be loſt, it muſt be loſt at once. The general laws againſt ſedition and libelling are at preſent as ſtrong as they can poſſibly be made. Nothing can impoſe a farther reſtraint, but either the clapping of an imprimatur upon the Preſs, or the giving to the Court very large diſcretionary powers to puniſh whatever diſpleaſes them. But theſe conceſſions would be ſuch a barefaced violation of Liberty, that they would, probably, be the laſt effort of a deſpotic government. We may conclude, that the Liberty of Britain is gone for ever when theſe attempts ſhall ſucceed.

NEW-YORK, December 20.

Publiſhed by AUTHORITY.

ON Thurſday laſt arrived two officers from our army to the ſouthward, under the command of colonel Bouquet, by which opportunity we have the following intelligence.

Camp at the forks of Muſkingham, Nov. 16, 1764.

"The army arrived at this camp on the 25th of October, being in the centre of the Delaware towns, and near to Wakatemihi, the moſt conſiderable ſettlement of the Shawaneſe; and matters had been ſo managed with the ſavages, that we remained maſters of the conditions we had to preſcribe to them, firſt inſiſting on the delivery of all their priſoners, before any terms of peace ſhould be propoſed. The Delawares, Mingoes, and ſome broken tribes of Mohikos and Wyonoots were firſt entirely reduced, and ſubmitted to the reſtoring all their priſoners without exception: In conſequence of which the Mingoes, the Delawares, &c. delivered up all their priſoners, even to their own children, born of white women; which laſt was peremptorily inſiſted upon, and may be conſidered as a ſtrong proof of their ſincerity and humiliation. They have likewiſe given fourteen of their chiefs as hoſtages into our hands, for the ſecurity of the performance of their engagements, and that no hoſtilities ſhould be committed; and likewiſe agreed to ſend deputies from each nation to Sir William Johnſon, properly authorized to make peace, engaging to ratify all the conditions that ſhould be impoſed upon them. The Shawaneſe were more obſtinate, and refuſed to ſubmit to the ſame conditions, ſhewing a particular averſion to the giving of hoſtages: The army was on the point of coming to extremities; but meeting with a firmneſs that ſtaggered them, and being properly talked to, they found themſelves obliged to ſtoop to the ſame conditions as the other nations. They immediately delivered up forty priſoners, and have given ſix of their principal chiefs as hoſtages for the delivery of the remainder of their captives. Parties were ſent to their towns, to aſſiſt in collecting and bringing them to Fort Pitt; and the Shawaneſe are then to ſend deputies to Sir William Johnſon, to ſettle the peace, in the ſame manner as the reſt. The number of priſoners already delivered, exceeds two hundred, and many more are expected from the Shawaneſe; ſeveral of them have remained ſo many years with the Indians, as to become as ſavage as themſelves, and the Indians were obliged to tie them to bring them to the army."

NEW-YORK, December 20, 1764.

PROMPTED by a zeal for the public emolument, and taking into ſerious conſideration the preſent declining ſtate of our trade, the vaſt luxury introduced during the late war, our immenſe importations, with the want of ſufficient ſtaples for returns, the extreme ſcarcity of caſh, the great inconveniencies reſulting from the prohibition of iſſuing our paper currency in the uſual form, and the numerous reſtrictions with which our commerce is lately incumbering; ſeveral gentlemen in this city conceived it of public utility to form a ſociety for preventing as far as poſſible, the calamitous conſequences to be apprehended from ſuch complicated evils; and for the better facilitating their laudable deſign, to invite every lover of his country to aſſociate with them.

For this ſalutary purpoſe they have already formed a ſociety by the name of the ſociety for the promoting of arts, agriculture and œconomy in the province of New-York in North-America: and for the fuller explanation of their conſtitution and deſign, they think it expedient to acquaint the public, that they have already eſtabliſhed ſeveral rules for maintaining order and regularity in their proceedings, appointed the neceſſary officers for the year enſuing, and opened a ſubſcription the better to enable them to carry into execution ſuch their public ſpirited intentions.

They have further agreed to hold ſtated meetings on the firſt Monday of every month, when all perſons of whatever rank or condition, are requeſted to offer to the ſociety, either in perſon or by letter directed to Mr. Kiſſam, their ſecretary, ſuch ſchemes or propoſals as they conceive conducive to the public intereſt.

The ſociety will give the greateſt encouragement in their power to the manufacture of linen, and hope to eſtabliſh this beneficial article on the moſt ſolid foundation; which will increaſe the value of lands, employ our poor, and ſave the public large ſums, unneceſſarily expended at a time when trade is at a ſtand, and our Engliſh debts encreaſed to an intolerable burden.

The produce of our lands being our natural ſtaple, and conſequently the promotion of agriculture of the laſt importance; this will be a capital object of the ſociety's attention.—While Europe enjoys the advantage of thoſe vaſt improvements which experience has added to the art of huſbandry, there is ſcarce an inſtance where we have ventured to deviate from the common road. Treatiſes abounding in the moſt profitable diſcoveries are unknown to the farmer, or from his incapacity to make the proper allowance for the difference of ſoil and climate, neglected or deſpiſed. Hence ariſes the neceſſity of actual experiment to evince the excellency of modern huſbandry before we can be induced to adopt it. The ſociety by ſuitable rewards will therefore endeavour to excite an attention to this intereſting ſubject; and they earneſtly entreat all lovers of their country whoſe ſituation furniſhes them with an opportunity to devote ſome portion of their time in making uſeful experiments, and communicating their obſervations; which will always be moſt thankfully acknowledged.

The fiſheries will alſo fall under conſideration; nor ſhall mines nor minerals be neglected.

The ſubject of œconomy, as a matter of unſpeakable moment, will be amply conſidered, and it is to be hoped, ſome happy expedients will be diſcovered to check the progreſs of our luxury and extravagance.

The ſociety for the encouragement of arts, manufactures and commerce, in London, having generouſly offered a great number of premiums to the Britiſh colonies, and ſome of them very conſiderable, which for want of proper publications are ſcarcely known amongſt us. A correſpondence will be opened with that ſociety, and a method concerted to recover the premiums for the reſpective gainers without their trouble or expence.

To render the meetings of the ſociety the more uſeful and entertaining, it is intended, that after the buſineſs of the evening is finiſhed, queſtions ſhall be propoſed on topics peculiar to the deſign of the inſtitution, to be argued at the following meeting, after the concluſion of buſineſs, which will afford an opportunity of hearing a variety of ſentiments on thoſe important ſubjects.

Conſidering the happy effects of the ſeveral ſocieties nearly of a ſimilar nature, eſtabliſhed in London, Dublin, and Edinburgh, by whoſe encouragement many valuable improvements have been carried to a degree almoſt incredible; it is to be hoped the preſent attempt, in imitating of ſuch laudable examples, will be crowned with proportionable ſucceſs; and diffuſe amongſt us ſuch a ſpirit of emulation, induſtry, and œconomy, as will be productive of the moſt beneficial conſequences.

By order of the ſociety,

BENJAMIN KISSAM, Secretary.

Publick Notice is hereby given,

From the LONDON CHRONICLE.

COULD any of our plain anceſtors be called from their graves to take a view of the alterations that have been made in this town within the ſpace of a few ye rs, they would hardly believe it to be the ſame place, ſuch wonderful changes has it undergone. I know not when it will ſtop, but the rage for b'utifying has been, and ſtill is ſo great, that there is rea ſon to apprehend it will ſpread through the whole nation. Not only our ſtreets are new paved with Scotch ſtones, but the public offices and houſes of our principal nobility have been b'utified. The Houſe of Commons (which a member lately deceaſed was pleaſed to call a dirty houſe) is to be b'utified throughout by next ſeſſion. The Houſe of Lords has already been ſufficiently b'utified; and his Majeſty's Throne eſpecially is thought to be compleatly ſo. St. James's Palace, and all the office belonging to it, are b'utified; particularly the kitchen, which uſed to be black and ſooty, but is now (ſince the Talbot's-head has been n the porridge-pot) kept clear from ſmoke. The Queen's houſe is b'utifying every day, and there is no doubt but Leiceſter-houſe will go on in being b'utified as long as it ſtands. The Secretaries of States Office, the War Office, the Admiralty, the Exchequer, and all other public offices are b'utified, every thing that ſtood in the way being em ved. As to Weſtminſter-hall I do not find that the c urt of King's Bench requires to be b'utified, it being ſufficiently ſo already; but the other C urt of Common Pleas is likely to rem in without being in the leaſt b'utified, while the preſent Lord Chief Juſt ce preſides in it. It were endleſs to enumerate the ſeveral houſes of our nobility, which have been b'utified, ſuch as Bedford-houſe Holland-houſe, and Northumberland-houſe in particular, which latter was lately b'utified ſtill more on account of Lord Wa k worth's marriage; but Devonſhire-houſe, and ſome few other old-faſhioned houſes, have undergone no alteration As to the city, the manſion-houſe has indeed been ſometimes b'utified for t e year; but the court of Common Council, 'tis thought, will never be b'utified, notwithſtanding ſome deputies deſi e it. The gaols have been lately white-waſhed, and many citizens moſt ardently wiſh that the Tower was b'utified, and Temple-bar ornamented with the buſts or heads of ſeveral great men.

LONDON, OCTOBER 14.

The newly elected Poliſh Monarch is ſon of Count Poniatowſki, who was a colonel of the Swediſh Guards of King Staniſl us of Poland, and a nobleman of uncommon merit His attachment to the perſon of Charles the XIIth of Sweden was ſuch, that he followed him into Ukrania as a volunteer, without any poſt in his army He was a man of invincible courage, and of great calmneſs and preſence of mind in the moſt imm nent dangers. He was the chief inſtrument in ſaving a nd carrying off the Swediſh Hero fr m the battle of Pultowa, when deſperately wounded; for which ſervice he was prom ted to the rank of a general. He alſo preſerved the life of that prince a ſecond time, at the battle of Rugen in Pomerania. He afterwards acted as ambaſſa dor from Charles XIIth at Conſtantinople; which duty he diſcharged with ex traordinary addreſs. His ſon, the preſent King of Poland, who inherits all the virtues of his illuſtrious father, is above five feet ſeven in ſtature, about 32 years of age, has a majeſtic aſpect, a piercing eye, and poſſeſſes great courage temperet with reaſon; his natural parts, which are ſtrong and quick, are improved by a very liberal education; he is bleſs'd with the gift of memory in a very extraordinary manner; he ſpeaks ſeveral languages in great perfection, and is a lover of arts and ſciences. This Monarch viſited London in the year 1754, remained in England from the beginning of September to the latter end of December, and when in town lodged at Mr. Croppenhole's, in Suffolk ſtreet, near the Mews. During his ſtay in the kingdom he made a tour thro' South-Briton, and examined every thing worthy the attention of an ingenious and curious traveller. He went two or three times to Weſtminſter-Abby, and copied the moſt remarkable inſcriptions on the antient monuments, there he was alſo in the golden gallery at the top of St. Paul's Church, where he wrote his name. He liked England, and was fond of the perſons in genteel life with whom he converſed; but conſidered the lower claſs in a very unfavourable light, on account of ſome mobs which he chanced to be a ſpectator of, and from thence had too haſtily formed his opinion of the behaviour of the whole body of the common people.

A gentleman who has been at ſome pains to enumerate the ſeveral accounts we have had of the French and Spaniſh navy, by preparations ſince the peace, obſerves, that allowing the ſaid accounts to be true, both theſe powers muſt have made a ſurprizing progreſs indeed, as in that caſe France will be found to be now actually poſſeſs'd of one hundred and twelve ſhips of the line, forty-three frigates, beſides ſloops: And the Spaniſh navy, by the ſame calculation will amount to ſeventy-one ſhips of the line, and thirty-five frigates, &c. — Our correſpondent adds, that ſetting aſide the frequent and alarming paragraphs from Breſt, Toulon, Rochfort, and other capital ſea ports in France, as extravagant, and allowing, that every court engaged in the late war are endeavouring by various arts of policy, to recover thoſe ſpirits and vigour, which the war had almoſt exhauſted; nevertheleſs, France has ſuch natural advantages over her neighbours, that there are grounds to ſuſpect ſhe will ſooner accompliſh this great end, than any other Chriſtian power, unleſs our partial prejudice ſhould induce us to except ourſelves.

They write from Paris, that it was the general opinion there, that the Corſican expedition has been finally laid aſide.

The laſt crop at Jamaica produced 50,000 hogſheads of ſugar, and 15,000 puncheons of rum.

CHARLES-TOWN, JANUARY 19, 1765.

CAPTAIN ADDIS, who arrived here laſt monday, in 23 days from Mobile, informs us, that his Excellency Governor Johnſtone, was arrived there from Penſacola: That a brigantine from London, with ſtores, &c. one Campbell, maſter, was likewiſe arrived there: And, that the day after he came out, in Lat. 29 D. 30 M. North, and 25 leagues S. E. diſtance from the point of Mobile, he fell in with a ſloop laden with lumber, without a living creature on board, which, by the papers he found, proved to be the Penſacala, John Redman maſter, that had been driven out of Mobile-River the 20th ult. in a violent gale of wind; he put his mate, Mr. Corbett, and one hand on board, to bring the veſſel along with him, but after he had been in poſſeſſion of her 3 days, ſo violent a ſtorm came on, that ſhe was ſeparated from him, and (if not loſt) he imagines ſhe has got into the Havana.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, has appointed Capt. Robert Boyd, to be Harbour-Maſter for the port and harbour of Charles-Town,—an officer long and much wanted.

THOMAS BROMLEY, Clerk.

SEVERAL caſks of well aſſorted IRONMONGERY, ſuitable for plantation uſe, and a few bales of Scotch OSNABRUGS; to be ſold cheap, MIDDLETON, LISTON, & HOPE.

Amongſt the Poetical writings that have lately riſen in eſteem at home, are the works of the celebrated W. SHENSTONE, Eſq. The following piece of Humour, the production of his pen, may perhaps not be thought unentertaining.

NIGHT's ſable clouds had half the globe o'erſpread,
And ſilence reign'd, and folks were gone to bed;
When love, which gentle ſleep can ne'er inſpire,
Had ſeated Damon by the kitchen fire.

Penſive he lay, extended on the ground;
The little lares kept their vigils round;
The fawning cats compaſſionate his caſe,
And purr around, and gently lick his face:

To all his plaints the ſleeping cors reply,
And with hoarſe ſnoarings imitate a ſigh:
Such gloomy ſcenes with lovers minds agree,
And ſolitude to them is beſt ſociety.

Cou'd I (he cry'd) expreſs, how bright a grace
Adorns thy morning hands, and well waſh'd face;
Thou wou'd'ſt, Colemira, grant what I implore,
And yield me love, or waſh thy face no more.

Ah! who can ſee, and ſeeing not admire,
Whene'er ſhe ſets the pot upon the fire!
Her hands outſhine the fire, and redder things;
Her eyes are blacker than the pot ſhe brings.

But ſure no chamber-damſel can compare,
When in meridian luſtre ſhines my fair,
When warm'd with dinner's toil, in pearly rills
Adown her goodly cheek the ſweat diſtills.

Oh! how I long, how ardently deſire
To view thoſe roly fingers ſtrike the lyre!
For late, when bees to change their climes began,
How did I ſee 'em thrum the frying pan!

With her! I ſhould not envy G—— his Queen,
Tho' ſhe in royal grandeur deck'd be ſeen:
Whilſt rags, juſt ſever'd from my fair one's gown
In ruſſet pomp and greaſy pride hang down.

Ah! how it does my drooping heart rejoice,
When in the hall I hear thy mellow voice!
How wou'd that voice exceed the village bell;
Wou'dſt thou but ſing, "I like thee paſſing well!"

When from the hearth ſhe bade the pointers go,
How ſoft! how eaſy did her accents flow!
"Get out, ſhe cry'd, when ſtrangers come to ſup,
"One ne'er can raiſe thoſe ſnoring devils up."

Then full of wrath, ſhe kick'd each lazy brute,
Alas! I envy'd even that ſalute:
'Twas ſure miſplac'd.—Shock ſaid, or ſeem'd to ſay,
He had as lief I had the kick as they.

If ſhe the myſtic bellows take in hand,
Who like the fair can that machine command?
Oh may'ſt thou ne'er by Eolus be ſeen,
For he wou'd ſure demand thee for his Queen.

But thou'd the flame this rougher aid refuſe,
And only gentler med'cines be of uſe:
With full blown cheeks ſhe ends the doubtful ſtrife,
Foments the infant flame, and puffs it into life.

Such arts, as theſe, exalt the drooping fire,
But in my breaſt a fiercer flame inſpire:
I burn! I burn! Oh! give thy puffing o'er,
And ſwell thy cheeks, and pout thy lips no more!

With all her haughty looks, the time I've ſeen,
When this proud damſel has more humble been,
When with nice airs ſhe hoiſt the pancake round,
And dropt it, hapleſs fair! upon the ground.

Look, with what charming grace! what winning tricks!
The artful charmer rubs the candleſticks!
So bright ſhe makes the candleſticks ſhe handles,
Oft have I ſaid,—there were no need for candles.

But thou, my fair! who never wou'dſt approve,
Or hear the tender ſtory of my love;
Or mind, how burns my raging breaſt—a button—
Perhaps art dreaming of,—a breaſt of mutton.

Thus ſaid, and wept the ſad deſponding ſwain,
Revealing to the ſable walls his pain:
But nymphs are free with thoſe they ſhou'd deny;
To thoſe they love, more exquiſitely coy.

THOMAS BROMLEY, Clerk.

SEVERAL caſks of well aſſorted IRONMONGERY, ſuitable for plantation uſe, and a few bales of Scotch OSNABRUGS; to be ſold cheap, MIDDLETON, LISTON, & HOPE.

Amongſt the Poetical writings that have lately riſen in eſteem at home, are the works of the celebrated W. SHENSTONE, Eſq. The following piece of Humour, the production of his pen, may perhaps not be thought unentertaining.

NIGHT's ſable clouds had half the globe o'erſpread,
And ſilence reign'd, and folks were gone to bed;
When love, which gentle ſleep can ne'er inſpire,
Had ſeated Damon by the kitchen fire.

Penſive he lay, extended on the ground;
The little lares kept their vigils round;
The fawning cats compaſſionate his caſe,
And purr around, and gently lick his face:

To all his plaints the ſleeping curs reply,
And with hoarſe ſnorings imitate a ſigh:
Such gloomy ſcenes with lovers minds agree,
And ſolitude to them is beſt ſociety.

Cou'd I (he cry'd) expreſs, how bright a grace
Adorns thy morning hands, and well waſh'd face;
Thou wou'd'ſt, Colemira, grant what I implore,
And yield me love, or waſh thy face no more.

Ah! who can ſee, and ſeeing not admire,
Whene'er ſhe ſets the pot upon the fire!
Her hands outſhine the fire, and redder things;
Her eyes are blacker than the pot ſhe brings.

But ſure no chamber-damſel can compare,
When in meridian luſtre ſhines my fair,
When warm'd with dinner's toil, in pearly rills
Adown her goodly cheek the ſweat diſtills.

Oh! how I long, how ardently deſire
To view thoſe roly fingers ſtrike the lyre!
For late, when bees to change their climes began,
How did I ſee 'em thrum the frying pan!

With her! I ſhould not envy G—— his Queen,
Tho' ſhe in royal grandeur deck'd be ſeen:
Whilſt rage, juſt fever'd from my fair one's gown
In ruſſet pomp and greaſy pride hang down.

Ah! how it does my drooping heart rejoice,
When in the hall I hear thy mellow voice!
How wou'd that voice exceed the village bell:
Wou'dſt thou but ſing, "I like thee paſſing well!"

When from the hearth ſhe bade the pointers go,
How ſoft! how eaſy did her accents flow!
"Get out, ſhe cry'd, when ſtrangers come to ſup,
"One ne'er can raiſe thoſe ſnoring devils up."

Then full of wrath, ſhe kick'd each lazy brute,
Alas! I envy'd even that ſalute:
'Twas ſure miſplac'd.—Shock ſaid, or ſeem'd to ſay,
He'd had as lief I had the kick as they.

If ſhe the myſtic bellows take in hand,
Who like the fair can that machine command?
Oh may'ſt thou ne'er by Eolus be ſeen,
For he wou'd ſure demand thee for his Queen.

But thou'd the flame this rough her ſire refuſe,
And only gentler med'cines be of uſe;
With full blown cheeks ſhe ends the doubtful ſtrife,
Foments the infant flame, and puffs it into life.

Such arts, as theſe, exalt the drooping fire,
But in my breaſt a fiercer flame inſpire:
I burn! I burn! Oh! give thy puſing o'er,
And ſwell thy cheeks, and pout thy lips no more!

With all her haughty looks, the time I've ſeen,
When this proud damſel has more humble been,
When with nice airs ſhe hoiſt the pancake round,
And dropt it, hapleſs fair! upon the ground.

Look, with what charming grace! what winning tricks!
The artful charmer rubs the candleſticks!
So bright ſhe makes the candleſticks ſhe handles,
Oft have I ſaid,—there were no need for candles.

But thou, my fair! who never wou'dſt approve,
Or hear the tender ſtory of my love;
Or mind, how burns my raging breaſt—a button—
Perhaps art dreaming of,—a breaſt of mutton.

Thus ſaid, and wept the ſad deſponding ſwain,
Revealing to the ſable walls his pain:
But nymphs are free with thoſe they ſhou'd deny;
To thoſe they love, more exquiſitely coy.
